Nulty so badly that he died to-night. Both men came to Fort Worth from Chicago.

Washington, Oct. 2.—Bids were opened at the Indian Office to-day for the segregated coal lands in the McAlester district of the Choctaw Nation, Indian Territory.

There are seventy-four tracts in the district, but the bids opened to-day cover only twentyfive of them.

The striking feature of the bids is the lack of competition, only a few tracts being bid for by more than one person.

Many of the bids are considered very good, while others are too low to be considered. The best very probably will be accepted in the near future.

best very probably will be accepted in the mear foture.

The largest bid for a single tract was that of Edwin Ludiow of Las Esperantas, Mexico, who offered 15,200 for tract No. 7.

The second largest bid was 155,400, offered by Andrew Dow for tract No. 13.

The third bid was 155,200, which J. H. M. Clesgett of Chicago offered for tract No. 15. A second bid on this tract was 55,000, offered by an Indian Territory man.

Williard P. Heath of St. Louis was the fourth highest hidder for a single tract, offering 514,20 for tract No. 11.

Among the other bids were two from St. Joseph Charles F. Steinacker and Theodore Steinacker offering 31,300, respectively, for tracts Nos. 24 and 35.

Some of the tracts are far more degrable than others, which accounts for the great difference in the bids.

Many of the bids are from residents of the Territory, and some from Vaness, who had a better than to look were the lands.
